'The stand taken by the state department that the Huerta government shall not be recognized because its hands are not clean appears somewhat finnicky to people in the City of Mex-ico. Revolutions are seldom bloodless. ico. Revolutions are seldom bloodless. Whatever the means to get his power. Huerta's title to the presidency has the approval of the Mexico forms of law and is of equal validity with that of Provisional President De La Barra, whom the late President Madero suc-ceeded. It is objected that Huerta has not called a general election. Under the laws of Mexico an election could not have been held earlier than the not have been held earlier than the present month of July. Every one in Mexico realizes that it would be folly to pretend to hold a presidential election at this time. Might not the state department find such an election another obstacle to diplomatic relations? "It appears difficult for public opinion in the United States to be aroused in this matter. We believe in Mexico that the state department will do nothing until the demand is made upon it by the American people. If my countrymen realized that 100 Americans, in round numbers, have been wantonly killed in Mexico in the last year they would undoubtedly sternly demand that the state department take up negotiations with Mexico at once.
